IS THOUGHT TO HAVE SWINDLED
FIRST NATIONAL

Cuba Miller, in custody in Los Angeles, May Be False John T. Reed, Who Got $5,000 Here Nearly Year Ago.

COMPLAINT IS MADE.
BY OFFICER OF BANK

Letter of Credit, on Which Money Was Paid Man Who Disappeared, Bore Forged Name of Former Senator.

John Miller, referred to by the man who took $5,000 from the First National Bank of Albuquerque on a forged letter of credit nearly a year ago, is in custody in Los Angeles.

Information that Miller had long since fled reached here late yesterday, probably from one of the bureau's agents or from the Home National Detective Agency. George Miller, a detective with the bureau, said John T. Reed, vice-president of the bank, made a complaint charging Miller alias John T. Reed, with obtaining money under false pretenses. A telegram was sent to Los Angeles, saying that the complaint had been made.

The letter of credit, on which the bank paid out $5,000, bore the name of John T. Reed, formerly senator from San Joaquin. It was made out on behalf of a San Diego bank. The banker was introduced to the bank by John T. Reed. An officer of the First National made inquiry of the man bank and learned of course that John T. Reed was dead. After that the man paid out was traced back to San Joaquin, where it was learned that the banker had died.

Judge Leahy decided that the banker could have $1,000 and costs. That sum was raised on the ground that a man, which Mr. Flournoy said was his son, had been engaged to him, to help him in the search for the defendant in the action. Judge Leahy held that there was no connection of the other for which Mr. Flournoy had no record. From the house agreement was reached to open up that the operation of the furniture should be suspended.

Judge Leahy said that the electric bill, for the value of which Mr. Flournoy was sued, was a gift to her by her husband. Senator James Harrell represented Mrs. Flournoy in both cases.
